Well after the State of the Union Address we now know for sure that President Obama intends to transform America. He intends to change the country in dramatic ways in his second term no matter who controls Congress according to Tom Fitton, President of Judicial Watch, a Watchdog Organization concerned with the governmental affairs.

How will he do it. According to Mr. Fitton this is how:

We can certainly take a clue from the president's first go-around. When Obama wanted to "reform" our nation's immigration system and didn't have the votes in Congress, what did he do? He simply implemented illegal alien amnesty through executive fiat by instructing Immigration and Customs Enforcement to look the other way and not apprehend and deport illegal alien lawbreakers.

Call it "prosectortial discretion." Call it "selective deportation." Call it whatever you want. When the president' refuses to enforce illegal immigration laws and allows illegal aliens to enjoy many of the benefits of citizenship or legal residence that"ns amnesty pure and simple.
