

Hello, this is Tom Cookman with a Community Comment.

When I heard Rush Limbaugh tell us that President Obama was the most successful President in modern history, it made me mad. I really questioned his sanity, since I believe that Obama will go down in history as a major reason as to why the United States of America failed. Not too far down the road, we will cease to exist as we know it. We will probably be split into two or three nations. I know that sounds extreme, but we are bankrupt as a nation and instead of reigning in spending, Obama has pushed the accelerator to the floor. He will have created more debt in his presidency than the combined debt of all his predecessors. Yet, by definition he is very successful. Every program he wants, gets approved. The conservatives in Washington DC are spineless and weak. They cave in with the slightest pressure. Our politicians, like Obama, have created a lazy, unproductive society. The hand outs are out of control and the people we've elected to look out for our society are terrified of cutting anyone off for fear of losing a vote. I'm sure many of these politicians know what they are doing is wrong; they are just too selfish to do what is right for our country. Term limits would be a great place to start. We have doubled the number of people on Food Stamps and for some reason this is portrayed as a good thing. I would define success as creating enough jobs where the number of people on Food Stamps would be cut in half, not doubled. There are people who work in the Food Stamp program who are being promoted and financially rewarded because of the number of people they've added to the program. This is just wrong. I really have a different definition of success than the politicians. During last year's campaign, Obama kept telling the voters that Osama Bin Laden is dead and General Motors is alive. First of all, the General Motors that existed when Obama first took office is dead. General Motors filed bankruptcy, their stock became worthless and that company didn't exist anymore. Obama didn't bail out that company; he took our tax dollars and created a new company with the same name. He gave the unions a majority of this new stock, in exchange for future support. This was the largest theft in history and it was done right out in the public. It was a double theft by Obama. He stole the old General Motors from the existing stockholders and stole our tax dollars to create the new General Motors which he basically gave to the unions. This back door robbery was then used as a success story in his campaign and he was rewarded with another four years. I owned 5,000 shares of GM stock. I didn't get 5,000 shares of the new GM stock, my stock became worthless and I was left holding the bag, while the rich union guys were given the new shares. This wasn't a success, it was CRIMINAL. Here we are today with more people than ever feeding at the public trough. The numbers are staggering. There are more people who work for the government or receive government assistance than there are people who work in the private sector. Mathematically it is impossible for this to continue to be funded. Yes, Osama Bin Laden is dead, so is Ambassador Stevens who was left hung out to "die" by the Obama Administration. Osama Bin Laden's Al Qaeda brutally murdered Chris Stevens, so, in essence, Osama Bin Laden lives on through his terrorism and the old General Motors, is dead.

This has been Tom Cookman with a Community Comment.