There has been so much in news lately involving this great country of ours, the Middle East and especially our relationship with Iran.

One of our problems is that we have a current administration and a president who do not understand the Constitution of the United States of America. Although Pres. Obama taught constitutional law he has failed to understand that there are three equal branches of government. We have the legislative, the judiciary and of course the executive branch. His branches only one of the federally mandated branches of our great government. So when Pres. Obama says that he has a pen and a phone and he will make use of those two things he totally ignores our Congress and the judicial branch of our government.

When he recently said that he would go to the United Nations for approval of his negotiations with Iran, he totally ignored our Congress which is comprised of the Senate and the House of representatives. This administration has been loath to work with our Congress to reach satisfactory results that each and every one of us could appreciate.

Not only does this administration ignore the other branches of our government, they tend to ignore we the people of this great country of ours. Fortunately our founding fathers saw fit to protect us from future ignorance and tyranny. Their foresight was so unbelievable that in 1787 could write a document that would lead this country on to good fortune and to seek those protections that you and I have every day of the week.

Being a lawyer and having studied constitutional law as a requisite I am repelled by the acts of this administration in denying the existence of this great document of ours and the history behind it. Those acts of this administration have made us weaker in the global world that we face today. Our armed services have been denied the budgets that they deserve and I am extremely concerned about it Iran and the possibility that they may acquire a nuclear weapon, that is if they haven't already done so.

We did little to stop North Korea and its development of nuclear weapons and I am concerned that this again could happen with other countries that could be threats to the United States.

I leave you with a point to ponder: shouldn't we be encouraging and actually pushing our representatives in Congress to pressure this administration and to reestablishing a sound economy and a safe country.
