I got a notice from the Times-Standard in the mail the other day with a lot legal mumbo-Jumbo about holiday newspapers and whether we wanted to pay the price or not, so I called the paper, and the gal explained it to me. It was a lot of fuss over a few newspapers.//I spoke in my last comment about all we hear about our elected representatives and the laws they are passing, or attempting to pass about somewhat insignificant things. Our County supervisors, a couple of whom I consider good friends, and I would not say anything about them personally, have been spending a lot of time dealing with marijuana and all the points about legalizing it, and figuring out what they will do with all the money they will get from the taxes they will collect from people who have been evading the law for lo, these so many years. They could be spending time figuring how to get our county roads put in driveable conditions, for one, and many other more pressing projects. Our State government agencies are spending time dealing with, as I said last comment, Daylight Savings Time, arguing about gun control and how many bullets you can have in a gun. I have no problem with complete background checks for gun buyers and waiting periods before receiving the firearms, but most illegal users of firearms don't buy them legally anyway. If they could figure out a way of keeping criminals from stealing them, then they would be doing something!//It just occurred to me, on the marijuana issue-marijuana is still illegal under federal law, so how's that legalizing stuff going to work anyway?//We hear Public Service Announcements all the time about U.S. 101 and the "Devil's Slide". As I said last comment-"is anyone doing anything about that? I would consider that a number one priority, but we hear nothing- or as Schultz on Hogan's Hero's used to say "I know nothing!"* Of course, now they are off for the summer, so nothing is being done about anything! A few days ago one of our elected dodos held a filibuster on gun control, something they have been wasting their time with for a long time. Again-millions of us have legal guns. Now they are telling us we will HAVE to register certain weapons-baloney!! How are they going to know who has what? Go through all of our homes? I don't think so!///Now, I am saying a final goodbye to my younger sister, Debbie, who passed away this spring after suffering from seizures and strokes. She will be laid to rest next to her husband , Gary at my sister's place at Petrolia. When Debbie was just a teenager, she couldn't get away with anything-too many people knew us and would tell mom where she had been. So long, Deb, we loved you and Gary dearly!///We had a nice day on the Fourth-having a steak BBQ with friends, just relaxing, and watching the fireworks Monday late evening. I sent a small donation in, and am predicting that it was a good show.
