

Dec.

This is Phil Arnott for community comment on K INS radio.

There was a very interesting article in the Wall Street Journal by Dick and Liz Cheney about this great country of ours and of course the 911 attack on the World Trade Center's.

They say that winning the war against radical Islam will require an effort of greater scale and commitment than anything we have seen in this country since World War II.

Our current administration, according to this article, says that Pres. Obama has been more dedicated to reduce America's power than to defeating our enemies and how has he done this. According to the Cheney's he has enhanced the abilities, reach and finances of our adversaries, including the world's leading state sponsor of terror which is been at the expense of our our allies and our own national security. He has overseen a decline all of our own military capabilities as our adversaries Strake has grown.

They state that our Air Force today is the oldest and smallest it is ever been. Testimony from our top military people have stated that the Army is as unready as it had been at any other time in its history. The Cheney's state that by diminishing America's strength and deterrence ability the threat from global terrorist organizations has grown. The director of the national counterterrorism Center testified in Congress and said that the terrorists threat around the globe is brighter, whiter and deeper than it has been at any time since 9/11.

The presidents own CIA director told Congress that our efforts have not reduced terrorism capability or global reach and that the presidents policies have contributed to our enemies advance.

I support a group called the heritage foundation <sup>and its</sup> in our most recent report the foundation spoke about Daniel Hannan, a British member of the European Parliament following Britain's vote to leave the European union.

Just before this decision he gave an impassioned speech which applies not only to that great country but applies to ours as well. He said Edmund Burke said that a nation is a partnership between the people who have died, the people who are alive now, and the people who haven't yet been born. Being a nation means that were not just a random set of individuals born to a random set of individuals. It imposes on us a duty to keep intact the freedoms that we were lucky enough to inherit from our parents and pass them on securely to the next generation. We are a great country and our song is not yet sung.

I leave you with a point to ponder don't you think that it's our duty as Americans to keep a light the flame of our founding.

This is Phil Arnott for community comment

We need a "Can Do" attitude & to Keep + enlarge ~~for~~ Freedoms.
OUR