

Gene Owens
3916 Palomino Place
Fortuna, Cal. 95540
707-725-1934

Monday June 5, 2017

KINS Community Comment 2

In order to protect our freedoms We the People must understand and agree upon certain basic terms. The United States is a Republic with rule by Constitutional Law. It is not, nor has it ever been, a democracy with rule by majority. Rule by law and rule by majority is not the same thing.

Look at our State flag it reads: CALIFORNIA REPUBLIC. When we say the pledge of allegiance we all say: "and to the Republic for which it stands." Article IV Section 4 of the United States Constitution guarantees every State within this Union shall be a Republic—not a democracy.

As stated in Article VI Clause two the United States Constitution is the Supreme Law of our Land and all judges are bound by Oath of Office to "support and defend" the United States Constitution. Many Americans believe it is the Duty of the judges to interpret the Constitution; in a way this sounds right; however, how would it sound if the Oath of Office were: "I promise to interpret the Constitution?" If this were the Oath of Office the Constitution would be rendered a blank piece of paper. There's no party system outlined in the Constitution; parties divide the people. In his Farewell Address President George Washington warned of the many baneful effects caused by parties. Parties are special interest groups with an agenda. If the Constitution was rightly followed we could have a democrat president and a republican vice-president, vice-versa or no party whatsoever. According to the Constitution running for president is not a team effort; the unconstitutional way we select the vice-president he/she never campaigns and never receives a single vote.

Many Americans believe that our economic system is capitalism; however our true economic system is private-free enterprise. Every nation must have capital.

This capital is either created by their people, their government or given to them by another nation. The different systems of capitalism are defined by who controls the capital: the government or the people. In America it is we the people who are supposed to control our capital.

Some people falsely claim that before WWI we were isolationist; however, we were in fact non-interventionist. As a campaign pledge President Woodrow Wilson promised he would not involve America in war; after he was elected President Wilson claimed: "We must go to war to make the world safe for democracy." Soon after WWI America became the world's policemen forcing democracy on all the people with or without their permission.

President George Washington stated: "As far as possible be on good terms with all nations, but avoid foreign entanglements." After WWI our foreign entanglements have never ended. Our leaders are more involved in solving world problems than they are in solving America's problems.

America is great because we have a written rule of law, the Constitution and no one, no one, is above the law. It is the United States Constitution that provides due process of law to all of our citizens. We have a national government for all these fifty united States. Constitutionally we are not to be involved in world government. It would destroy our sovereignty and the American people's freedom of self-determination.