I keep a tablet by my chair and I write things of interest down for my comments. This week's list was long, and over the weekend a tragic accident gave me something else to comment on. I am speaking, of course, of the tragic drowning of an eight year old girl at Big Lagoon on the ocean side. Having been personally involved in a couple of incidents in the ocean, I beg of you-PAY ATTENTION TO YOUR KIDS OR OTHERS AT OCEAN SIDE! At Big Lagoon or at Freshwater Lagoon, there is a rip tide that runs parallel to the shore, and will swallow a person, especially a child, right up. So, again- pay attention to your kids, or others at oceanside!//An article in Sunday's Times-Standard brought up the issue of food stamps, or whatever they are called now, and how the Republicans were trying to make it more difficult to get them, under the guise of making sure those who received them deserved them. I spent all of my working life in grocery stores, and I can assure you that the vast majority of food stamp users are using them to help supply their families with balanced diets, There are those, of course, who sell them or otherwise use them improperly, but that happens, no matter what the items involved. Those who are trying to make it more difficult to get this aid in making life easier for people of low incomes obviously have never been there themselves.//While I'm on the subject of government, or should I say politics-what's with our top level of government officials? Our president is accused of different levels of using ladies of differing low class life styles, hiring and firing top level officials, such as FBI and other legal departments, then they fire back insults and other defensive statements-who's running the country? They remind me of teen-age kids with a "did too-did not" attitude of behavior.//I read in the Times-Standard where a particular legal case was going to be settled three and a half years after it's conception. What's with that? Do we need more judges? Three and a half years! Who remembers what happened then? Have the defendants been sitting in jail all this time? If so, that is an unnecessary cost to the county, and if they are out on probation or whatever they would call it, are they breaking the law again?//Highway 101 south sure has claimed a lot of victims lately. Add the eight member family who were murdered by the driver who drove them off the cliff on highway one, and the death toll for 101 south has been pretty high lately.*2:35//A comment I heard on Anthony Mantova's Community Comment the other day involved the city council and their lack of paying attention to major problems. One comment he made was that they were considering changing H and I streets back to 2 -way streets. Forget that! Imagine the potential for wrong-way drivers! I've seen several of those the way it is now!
