

Sign on.....

I heard a little blurb on the TV news Sunday evening that said something about one of our government representatives being in hot water because he supported a county supervisor candidate of an opposite party. It wasn't clear to me, but from what I heard-first the supervisors are not politically aligned with a party, except for their personal opinion, and the government representative should be able to support whom he wants to. More on this after I learn more about it.//The ending of the football team at Humboldt State University is a sad situation. I only know what I hear or read about, but the University President seems to be separated from reality. On the surface, she has made no efforts to maintain the program To be sure, It is an expensive situation, and according to what I've heard, HSU is in the red, financially, big time. It's still very sad.//There has been some talk about shipping containers from Humboldt Bay as opposed to Oakland. That would be a boon to the area, but wouldn't hauling all those containers up or down 101 be a strain on our highway? If the railroad was in operation, that would be perfect, but that ain't gonna happen! Not even the one sort of proposed to go to Redding. Two close together mountain ranges to cross-I don't think so.//DennisBeaver had an editorial in the Times-Standard last week about paying citations received in the mail for violations captured on camera. He gave options for paying, or not paying, not recommending that, of course, but having had something similar happen to me in San Francisco, they will come after you. If you break the law-pay the fine.//My wife went through the self-checkout lane at Safeway last week, and left forty dollars in the machine. She realized it when she got home, called the store, and someone had come to the office and asked "what do you do when you find money?" there are still honest people in the world.

Whoever you are, thank you!//I also want to thank the people at Adel's a restaurant at Broadway and Wabash, for a nice, well prepared, quiet anniversary/birthday dinner we had down there last week. The food was great, the service perfect and we got a piece of cake with a candle and a serenade celebrating the occasion.//You regular listeners will know that I had to have

My LEG

~~the prosthesis~~ My wife and I went to Hanger prosthetics to see about an artificial leg, or prosthetic, Unfortunately, there is not enough leg left to do a good job with one, considering the poor condition of my hands and the hardware in my other leg. I knew that was going to happen, but I am doing well, can get in and out of the car, and Dial-A-Ride saves my bacon. The drivers are very efficient and helpful and the schedulers will do their best to get you where you are going and back home again.//Here's wishing a good rest of the week to you all, and thanks to the crew at KINS for allowing me to do this.

Sign off.....